The first thing that you will notice when you get in the door at Hubba's is the decor. There are signed dollar bills tacked ALL over the walls, with some memorable quotes. There are no menus since it is quite limited and written on paper plates that are also on the walls. There are about a dozen barstools at the counter in this very narrow diner.

Pat's stays open to 3 am on weeknights and 5 am on weekend to cater to the late night crowds that are leaving the nearby clubs and bars.

There is only one reason you go to Pat's and it is the chilli. It has been their staple for years and seem to get hotter as the night goes on.

The signature item would be a "cheeseburger wedge, with chilli." It is a grilled sub roll that is overstuffed with two cheeseburgers, dripping with cheese (only American), onions and smothered in chilli. You will need extra napkins!!!

Other staples include chilli cheese dogs, steak-cheese wedges, fries and the onion rings are a cut above.

When you get your meal, ask for a "Hubba Water" , which is a mixture of New York's finest along with Hawaiian Punch.

If you have late night munchies near the NY/CT border and like a little spicy chilli ... Make sure you stop by Pat's
